Paint Lick And Cartersville Areas Suffer Heavy Hail Damage

Garrard Fairs Well In Friday Tornado Outbreak

By Ted Cox
tc Cox@garrardcentralrecord.com

Though golf ball size hail pelted the northern facing sides of more than 70 homes in the Paint Lick and Cartersville areas, Garrard escaped the deadly tornado outbreak of last Friday relatively well when compared to other areas in the state.

Violent storms ripped through northern and eastern Kentucky around dusk Friday. Small communities across Kentucky seemed to bear the brunt of the storm front, which spawned tornadoes from the Gulf Coast into Virginia and north to Indiana and Ohio, killing at least 19 people and injuring more than 300 across the state.

"There were eight tornado warnings issued for Garrard County that night," Garrard County EMA Director Wendell Hatfield said. "Just about the whole county got some kind of hail or wind but it seemed that most of the damage was concentrated to the Paint Lick area. I think that we dodged a bullet several times."

As Garrard countians begin cleaning up after the storm, officials urge those who have suffered property damage to photograph the damage, save any repair receipts and report damages to the

A Tree was blown down at Alice Ray's home on Maple Avenue in Lancaster tearing the front porch off.

Other residences in the Paint Lick and Cartersville area suffered similar damage. The Garrard County EMA reports that more than 70 homes in southern Garrard have been damaged.

City Attorney Advises Council To Present Formal Charges Before Proceeding With Mayor's Removal

Memorandum Not Enough

By Pattie Cox
pc Cox@garrardcentralrecord.com

The regular March city-council meeting, a continuation of the special-called meeting held in the old Garrard County Courthouse two weeks ago in regard to a discussion on leadership issues under first-term Mayor Brenda Powers, again resulted in no action.

Following about an hour and a half of discussion between council members and the public, Bret Baierlein, although declining to go as far as asking for Powers' removal, did enter a motion to proceed with a public hearing.

"This council has to make some sort of decision as to whether the process moves forward," Baierlein said.

But that's as far as it went. City Attorney Leonard Smith advised council members that proceeding without official charges would be out of order.

"I see it all as a dead issue," Smith said. "...Charges have not been served on the mayor by due process yet."

Smith explained that charges must be specified and that the memo outlining the council's grievances against the mayor would not cut it. Although council members agreed that the memo clearly defines the issues lacking in Mayor Powers' administration, including 21 specific reasons that fall under the categories of willful neglect of duties, misconduct and incapacity, it asked for her resignation and did not officially charge her. That step must be taken first,

Garrard Man Drowns In Herrington Lake

By Ted Cox
tc Cox@garrardcentralrecord.com

A day-long search, after a Garrard County man went missing on Friday afternoon, ended in the worst possible conclusion as members of the Camp Dick Fire Department and Garrard Search and Rescue, as well as the Boyle County and Bluegrass search and rescue teams, pulled his body from Lake Herrington.

James Obradovich, 62, was pronounced dead at 1:50 p.m. near his home at 1133 Bryants Camp Road. He was last seen alive by his wife, Bernice Obradovich at around 2 p.m. on Friday afternoon working in their backyard, according to Garrard County Coroner Daryl Hodge. She called 911 around 4 p.m. when she couldn't locate her husband and boats were in the water by 6 p.m. searching. Boats searched until 2:30 a.m. Saturday morning and were put back in the water at around 10 a.m. later that morning.

"You could see the lake from his kitchen window," Hodge said. "After the autopsy report, done in Louisville, was returned it was found that he had suffered a heart attack and fell off of an embankment. He had multiple fractures and then drowned."

Hodge said that the death was not attributed to the harsh weather of Friday evening.

Obradovich was a former baseball player for the Minnesota Twins, Atlanta Braves and Houston Astros as well as the Mexican League. He was also an Army veteran.

The $11.9 million Garrard County Judicial Center, funded by the Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts, reached completion last month and opened its doors for regular daily use. Last Thursday more than 400 people from around the county, region and state gathered at the newly completely building for the dedication ceremony.

The dedication concluded a process begun when the Kentucky General Assembly authorized it in 2006 and approved its funding in 2008.

"It is a privilege to celebrate with the people of Garrard County as they dedicate this outstanding new justice center," Chief Justice of Kentucky John D. Minton Jr. said. "Since the early days of the Commonwealth, Kentucky courthouses have held a special place as the center of our communities."

Minton, a special guest along with Justice Daniel Ventors, Judge Michael Caperton, Judge James H. Lambert, Family Court Judge C. Michael Dixon and Judge Janet C. Booth, spoke highly of both the design and construction of the building.

What Could Have Been

Four high cost statues stand
Starring at the Justice Center steps
Paid for with money that could
Of been tornado relief fund help.

Some of those folks lost everything
That they had worked hard to make
They need more than a backdrop
For some photo they want to take.

And what about our old folks
Trying to live on a fixed income
Wouldn't it have been better
To try and help them out some.

We could have even fixed the potholes
In all of our city streets
And still help the hungry
Have something good to eat.

Could've helped those around
Who are having it so hard
Just trying to keep up payments
On their own house and yard.

Or gave the whole building cost
To build a new water plant
At least that would've been useful
And this new building really ain't.

Now the money is all spent
The way they wanted instead
But when did anyone in government
Ever try thinking that far ahead.

Support The Grand

Dear Editor,
On behalf of the Lancaster Grand Theatre Board of Directors and countless other supporters, advocates, and volunteers, we ask the citizens of our community to consider making a contribution to The Grand Theater. With your help, The Grand Theater will reopen in Fall 2012. I hope you will join our efforts to bring a forgotten example of fine craftsmanship and cultural significance and staple of Garrard County back to life. Since our efforts began, we have heard so many touching tales of what the Grand meant to so many in our community. It was the site of many first dates, special birthdays, and moments of inspiration for countless regulars and visitors.

The Grand Theater was commissioned by J.R. and S.G. Haselden and first opened in 1925. The theater originally held 750 seats, and the stage and screen were complimented by a large pipe organ and piano located in the pit in front of the stage. The original lamps were in boxes made by Model T Ford casing. These unique lighting features have been restored and will once again hang in the renovated space. Lancaster's Grand Theater will offer state of the art production equipment, a playwright's stage, and silver screen.

Upon completion, The Grand Theater will provide a wealth of entertainment options to our local community, our region, and Kentucky. It will be available for musical groups, films, business gatherings, speakers, and will serve as a meeting and special event space for our community. The newly renovated auditorium will seat 400. Partnerships with the Grand are already beginning to form with theatrical and arts organizations from around the region.

The children of our community deserve a place to experience live cultural entertainment to inspire, grow, and build an appreciation for the arts. The people of Garrard County deserve a convening space to gather, work together, and build a better community for our families to live. This new cultural site will also be an asset as our community's economy continues to grow and expand with many new businesses and prospects throughout the downtown area. The economic and social benefits of this ambitious venture are immeasurable, giving Garrard Countians a reason to "Come back to the Square!".

Currently, the Grand Theater Board of Directors is seeking contributors to purchase seat plates for the new custom chairs in the theater. The cost is $500 but can be paid in installments. After all of the memories once made in the old Grand. We hope that you will contribute and permanently add your name to a seat and legacy to the Grand new theater in our community!

Thank you for your consideration of this request. To secure your seat plate, please send a check to Lancaster Grand Theater, Inc., 27 Public Square Lancaster, Kentucky 40444. If you are interested in making installment payments, please contact McKinley Dailey at 859-792-7103.

We look forward to seeing you at The Grand soon!

Most Sincerely,
Board of Directors

Living Through Last Friday's Wind And Hail In Paint Lick

POINTS EAST
By Ike Adams

Last Friday evening, March 2, I learned a lesson that I will never forget. To wit, when a weather forecaster advises "imminent tornado warning, take shelter now," my butt is headed for the cellar.

It no longer matters to me that most of the time when we get such warnings, we never see bad weather.

But last Friday the consequences of ignoring sound advice came too close to hitting home.

Let me say right up front that Paint Lick did not receive the devastation that numerous other communities across the state experienced but I can tell you for sure that had we been outside when the hail storm hit, we'd be six feet underground by now.

We have three vehicles that the insurance company will declare total wrecks because they look like someone has taken a hammer to them and pounded until they ran out of breath, windows and windshields either completely wiped out or cracked up so badly they can't be seen through. Headlights and tail lights broken out.

We live in a fairly-large, two story home. The western-facing wall, from eave to ground looks as if it has been hit by a hundred rounds of cannon fire and most of the siding was scattered in pieces from 1 to 6 inches long. Seven windows are completely gone and wound up on floors in tiny pieces. We would have been shredded if we'd been in either room. The roof looks worse than the aforementioned vehicles on both the house and garage.

We actually saw this storm coming about half a minute before it hit us. It looked like a solid white wall from the sky to the ground and we headed for the basement. As soon as we got the door closed it felt and sounded as if we were being hit by massive artillery fire. I've never been as scared for my life than I was during the minute the whole thing lasted.

We stayed holed up for 15 minutes or so before we dared to venture up stairs to look out the hole where a window used to be. By then the sky had lightened up and the wind was nearly calm. We finally ventured outside and saw the damage and began feeling sorry for ourselves. Our phones commenced non-stop ringing from friends and relatives checking on us. Daughter Carol and her husband Dana Deathredge were here in less than an hour to help board up and get us through the night and I have no idea what we would have done without them.

By 2:00 AM we felt safe enough to go to bed on living room furniture. Clean up continued on Saturday and well into the wee hours Sunday morning. By then we'd had detailed reports from Salyersville, West Liberty, East Bernstadt, Hager Hill, and several other communities and we began realizing how lucky were.

Best friend Ralph King showed up with food early Saturday morning. Daughter Jennifer showed up Sunday with more food and groceries and worked her behind off as the broken glass removal continued. Loretta's Brother, Dwight Embree and his wife, Teresa showed up Sunday and Loretta is driving Teresa's Town Car at this writing. Don and Angeletta Fields called from Midway offering to loan me a truck. Lo's sister was here Saturday with a ten gallon shop vac. It would take a page to list all our friends who called with offers to help. And we realized, more than ever, how blessed we are with so many friends and so much love.

Spring Has Sprung

By Kay Camenisch

When I was a child, about this time of year somebody would inevitably say, “Spring has sprung; the grass has ris. I wonder where the flowers is.” When I checked, I learned that the author is unknown and I also discovered that the common saying questions “where the birdies is,” rather than flowers. Anyway, that little poem keeps coming to mind, because the winter has been so warm.

The flowers have ris. Daffodils and crocus began blooming in the middle of February. Flowering bushes are now showing color, tree buds are ready to burst open, and grass is greening up.

The birdies have come too, for that matter. The first Robin I saw was on a very cold day in mid February. Its feathers were fluffed for warmth, and it looked like it had swallowed a watermelon. Our doves have also returned, and I’ve heard bird-songs through an open window.

I love Spring. It’s my favorite season of the year. I love the green grass, the splashes of color from flowers, birds returning, and farmers plowing their fields. But this year, it’s hard to be sure Spring has truly sprung.

A long cold spell and big snow could come tomorrow. Besides, the calendar says it’s winter. It’s a bit confusing. How do you know when Spring has sprung when warm days outnumber cold days all winter long?

This year reminds me of a winter in the mid to late 1980s. That year, I saw my first robin and the first fully-opened daffodils on February 7. When I saw that cluster of bright yellow shining on a dreary winter day, I grieved. I wanted to tell them, “It’s too early! Go back to sleep before a cold snap comes, wilts your sunny heads, and cuts short your brief time of glory.”

But the cold snap never came and more and more flowers bloomed. Unfortunately, I didn’t enjoy any of them. I was too anxious about a hard freeze killing them. As weeks passed, I realized Spring arrived early that year.

But I missed it. Rather than enjoying my favorite season, I was anxious all the way through it. I felt robbed. I purposed then to never let that happen again. I can’t stop an early Spring, but I can choose to enjoy it.

This year, before mid February, I brought three daffodils into the house just before they opened, put them in a vase, and placed them where I could watch them. It felt like the sun was smiling at me as I worked. I’ve thoroughly enjoyed the season this year.

It’s made me realize that there are other things in life that we might not fully enjoy in the moment. Instead, we worry about the future. How many times have we moaned our loss as we thought of our children going to school for the first time, departing to college, or for married life? Our grief over anticipated separation steals the enjoyment of the day.

Some people are hampered at work because they fear losing their job. Likewise, a diagnosis of a debilitating illness can rob today’s pleasure, because we’re anxious about what tomorrow might bring. We seem oblivious to the fact that fretting steals our energy, life, and joy. Nor do we realize that it doesn’t alleviate the pain and struggles of tomorrow. Anxiety about what might happen is not only pointless, it’s counter-productive.

In Matthew 6:34, it says, “Do not be anxious for tomorrow; for tomorrow will care for itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own.” Indeed. When we’re anxious, we add tomorrow’s trouble to today. Truly, each day already has enough problems without adding borrowed ones.

Consequently, I’m enjoying our early Spring. I don’t know what tomorrow will bring, but I’m relishing in the life and beauty of today— fluffy clouds against a deep blue sky, greening lawns, waving daffodils, singing birds, colorful bushes, and tree tops tinged red from opening leaf buds. All of nature is proclaiming the season.

The season won’t be official until March 20, but it’s Spring none the less. New life is breaking forth, and I’m going to enjoy every minute.

KCF Accepting Donations For Cattle Farmers Hit By Tornados

The Kentucky Cattlemen’s Foundation (KCF) would like to announce that they will be accepting monetary donations to address the needs of cattlemen in rebuilding fences and facilities following the storms of last week.

“Farmers across the state have been calling our office since the tornados hit wanting to know how they can help so we are working on a case-by-case basis to help farmers however we can,” stated Kentucky Cattlemen’s Association Executive Vice President Dave Maples.

Phone calls from some of the hardest hit areas have been received in the KCA office and are being dealt with on an individual basis. Many farmers have had buildings and fences destroyed while others have had entire herds killed in the storms. The monetary donations sent in will be used to directly assist producers in need and are tax deductible. Many areas affected are also in need of fencing supplies.

“These tornados have affected so many of our neighbors and fellow cattle producers and we just want to do anything that we can to help,” stated KCA President Mike Bach.

Those interested in donating to relief efforts coordinated by the Kentucky Cattlemen’s Foundation can donate online at www.ky-cattle.org or mail a check to the office at KCF Disaster Relief Fund, 176 Pasadena Drive, Lexington, KY 40503. For questions or more information call the office at 859-278-0899.

Habitat News

Garrard County Habitat for Humanity remains about on schedule with the current build. The interior doors were delivered last Friday and were installed on Monday. This is a rather easy job if one remembers the proper routine, like replacing the black-packing fastener that holds the door to the jamb with several tiny finish nails. That way, once the door is installed and square, it can be forced open by bending the small nails and then removing them. The black-packing fastener is most devilish to remove after the door is installed, as it is a plastic piece about three inches long and is fastened in the hole for the doorknob. It cannot be broken and cannot be removed even if unscrewed as it will not fit between the jamb and door to allow the door to open. We have tried and the 15-minute installation took nearly two hours, leaving the person inside the closet in the hot dark area that long also. Installing the eight doors should take about two hours if all goes well.

The homeowner is now painting, which should be complete this week also. As soon as it is complete we can install the flooring.

Luther Bruner, our electrician, is planning to complete the wiring this week. The rough-in inspection was done some time ago, so he is free to install all the breakers, plugs, switches and lighting fixtures. His least favorite to install is the light-fan assemblies as they are in every room and have many pieces to put together, so we volunteers get that simple but tedious job.

Thanks to Virginia Stump at Central Kentucky Federal Bank, we are on our way with the Environmental Review for the demolition of the structure next door. We cannot complete our present build until that structure is removed, a requirement of our funding agent, Kentucky Housing Corp. The most time consuming part of the review is getting a reply from the State Historical Office giving us information on the historical value of the structure. Most likely there is none based on the location but we still have to have documentation stating this. It is a free service but takes several weeks to get the answer back as they are quite busy. The rest of the information on the form is easy to get from online maps.

For a great sense of accomplishment, come build with us. Please call Roberta Keefe at 859-548-2270.

Dr. LOUIS WALKER

ARNOLD SUNDAY

Since the birth of our church in 2007 Dr. Louis Arnold has been a part of our ministry. Dr. Arnold just celebrated his 98th birthday and has been preaching the gospel for some 80 years.

In (1 Kings 12) we are told that Rehoboam sought counsel from the aged men of God, but then refused that counsel, and that led to his folly. Their challenge to the new King was to continue in the old paths.

One of the most respectful attributes of the ministry of Dr. Arnold is the fact that he has uncompromisingly stood true to Christ honoring music, and sound biblical preaching.

I would like to encourage you, as the pastor of this great church, to join us for this special day as we give honor to whom honor is due, and show forth respect to the ministry of a great man of God.

SERVICE TIMES:

10 a.m. - Sunday School

11 a.m. - Morning Worship Service

6 p.m. - Evening Worship Service

Dr. Arnold has a number of books, CDs and DVDs that will be available after each service.

Council Continues Discussing Mayor’s Removal

(From Front)

Smith said.

Laura Ross, an attorney with the Kentucky League of Cities, said that they generally defer to city attorneys but that the statute, KRS 83A.040 (9), is “gray” in regard to what step should be taken first. The key to the process for removal is that the official is given the opportunity for a public hearing before the official removal takes place.

The understanding is that a public hearing is an official proceeding that not only allows Powers’ to respond to the charges but requires council members to produce evidence and testimony, all with legal counsel and official court reporting. The public part of the hearing is only that the public is allowed to attend but not to speak, Smith added.

Ross, however, said that defining how the public hearing takes place is not clear in the statute. But again, she deferred to Smith’s opinion on what is necessary to comply with due process.

If a vote for removal ensued, then Powers would have the right to appeal to the circuit court with the possibility of further appeals taking it as far as the Supreme Court. Smith cited that the last time a mayor was removed from office it took four years.

“Litigation has a life of its own,” Smith said. “We’re talking about a lot of money.”

And the city’s insurance carrier cannot defend either party, he added. Coverage applies to external claims not internal disputes. Legal counsel for the mayor and the city council members would be at their own expense.

Baierlein said the memo could easily be converted into charges but that doing it during an open meeting is the only way he would be willing to proceed.

“I’ve already been accused of violating the Open Meetings Act,” Baierlein said.

“Without charges and specifications on the table, you don’t have a basis,” Smith reiterated.

“This is why removal of any officer is so difficult,” Councilmember Maggie Mick said. “It’s very serious.

It cannot be taken lightly.”

Still council members did not get into detail about their grievances before a packed city chamber of mixed support. That’s why their next step would be a public hearing where details of the allegations would be made public and Powers could defend her motives.

Holton Howard and Gail Eden both spoke in favor of Powers with Howard adding, “I think she’s doing a wonderful job.”

Howard said that witnessing Monday night’s meeting encouraged him that the council and the mayor can work together.

But working together has not been the issue, Councilman Brandon McGlone said. The council only came out with the memo describing the problems and asking her to resign when it became apparent they had no other choice.

“The issues we outlined were not issues where we said we will not work with [the mayor],” he said. “We tried. She acted in her own interest.”

David Wilson, a local farmer who has been involved in local governmental issues for years from the standpoint of a citizen, said, “The mayor’s job is to implement the decisions of the city council. She doesn’t believe that. She won’t believe that next year.”

Another farmer Larry Schwartz, a county resident for 16 years with a degree in political science, believes that despite Powers’ incapacity issues, the local government will go on. Although some of the charges claimed by council members are major issues, most he called “minutia.

“The people of this town elected this mayor,” Schwartz said. “They spoke...Work within that framework and make it work for this town and this county.”

Mick brought up the negative perception by surrounding communities, even statewide, due to the controversy that is adversely affecting economic development. With her husband Nathan Mick (R) running for state representative in the May primary and currently serving as the county’s economic development director, she said the impact is noticeable and that everywhere they go people are talking about it.

McGlone doesn’t believe that is a good enough reason to drop it.

“Do you sit back and continually allow things to happen,” McGlone said. “Are the things that have happened under this administration something we can move on from.”

Every council member agrees with the points addressed in the memo that many Powers’ supporters describe as mistakes made while learning the job, including Mick who did not sign it.

“I support the content of the memo,” Mick said. “I’ve seen major infractions done by this leadership.”

Even long-standing family friend and Councilman Chris Davis who described the action taken against Powers as the hardest thing he has ever been through in his life other than losing his father in death, finds Powers lacking.

“This is not a personal issue,” Davis said. “We really care for this community. We work hard for you.”

Powers spoke up as well saying that she couldn’t see any reason why the two sides can’t work together.

“I have not had any one of you come to my office,” she said. “I have no help but me. Some of the employees, we don’t get along.

“I’ve done the best I can do. I’m not the smartest person in the world.”

Baierlein took issue saying, “We work during the day. When we call, you don’t answer. When we e-mail, it takes months to answer.”

Still she said that she loves the job and that she gave up her state retirement to serve the community as Mayor.

One resident asked what will happen now. With a public hearing, she believes everything would be clear. Held at bay by Smith’s legal procedural advice, no meetings were scheduled.

“I’m inclined to listen to our city attorney,” Baierlein said on Tuesday. “I have no problem with taking one more step and listing formal charges...Hopefully we can have resolution soon.”

Storm Information

local county emergency-management and insurance provider.

“Documenting property damage can save you time and money in addition to making your insurance claim process smoother and quicker,” The Garrard County EMA announced over the weekend. “Consumers with questions about an insurance claim process or those who have not been able to reach anyone from their insurer should call the Department of Insurance toll-free number at 800-595-6053 for assistance.”

Hatfield said that teams surveying public infrastructure concluded that the storms caused around $15,000 to $20,000 worth of damage, but did not meet the federal requirement to receive assistance. Judge Executive John Wilson permitted Hatfield to declare an emergency for individual assistance on Monday.

“There is well over $100,000 to individuals as far as their vehicles and homes,” Hatfield said. “It is pretty set in stone as far as public damage but you never know what FEMA will do when it comes to individual damage. Sometimes they will bring counties in and sometimes they don’t. We will just have to wait and see.”

Kentucky Emergency Management will be issuing guidance on how to help our fellow citizens.

KSP posts and headquarters will serve as designated drop-off sites for items needed in devastated communities. The need has arisen for a reputable location where citizens feel comfortable leaving donations, knowing they will reach the people in most need. This will also limit the number of people traveling into these stricken areas (to deliver items) allowing first responders more access to people in need.

Items will be evenly distributed to all communities impacted. Collection of items will be starting tomorrow and will continue through Sunday, March 10. Monetary donations are not encouraged through the KSP. Anyone who wishes to contribute monetarily should contact an organization such as the Red Cross.

ings begin next week. Kidd also recommended the city get back into a program that would replace three cruisers every five years.

Fire Chief Richard Sebastian asked that council members allow a revision of the city’s burn ordinance, including fines and a way to enforce the code. The council can grant Sebastian enforcement authority in regard to burning violations, Kidd told council members, but the council decided to delay action until Sebastian can research how similar cities handle their violations and what fines they enforce. Chief Sebastian also reported Lancaster Fire and Rescue’s February activity, including three house fires, two electrical problems in residents’ homes, two accidents with one extrication, assistance for EMS on two occasions, four-natural gas leaks, one smoke investigation, four lock outs, three fire alarms and two rapid-intervention team runs. The LPD also conducted two fire-prevention classes during the month.

Two sealed bids offering administrative services to the city for the $2.5 million EDA grant were opened with approval given to Hunter Consulting for $20,000. The only other bid submitted was

Before You Donate

The Lexington Division of Emergency Management along with Kentucky Emergency Management is asking citizens to wait before donating any goods, used clothing or other materials for the victims of the recent tornadoes and severe storms.

Many charitable, church and service organizations are already in the stricken areas providing shelter, food and temporary housing for people in need. It is those organizations who need financial assistance to provide the necessary basics of life so people can start the recovery and rebuilding process.

In Lexington, the American Red Cross is accepting donations through its website, www.redcrosslexky.org. Donations to the Red Cross Bluegrass Chapter can also be made at any Central Bank or Fifth Third Bank branch in central Kentucky.

A list of other organizations accepting donations for Kentucky tornado victim relief is available on the Kentucky Emergency Management website. Please visit kyem.ky.gov and click on the tab marked Donations/Volunteers.

The Christian Appalachian Project in Lexington is accepting donations of certain items. CAP volunteers will be accepting the following items at their donation trailer which is located at the WalMart in the Hamburg Pavillion shopping area in Lexington, located at Winchester Road and I-75. The most needed items include: Cleaning supplies, toothbrushes and toothpaste, blankets, canned food, bottled water, paper plates and eating utensils, disposable diapers and toilet paper. Citizens are asked not to bring used clothing or perishable food items.

Attorney General Warns Of Fraud From Those Seeking Profit From The Storms

Attorney General Jack Conway is putting Kentucky businesses on notice that price-gouging will not be tolerated in the wake of last week’s deadly tornadoes. At General Conway’s request, Gov. Steve Beshear signed from Bell Engineering for $50,000.

Probation and Parole, located in a portion of the city owned Billy C. Moss Municipal Center, will host an open house on Friday March 9, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The area was recently renovated to meet the specifications of the state and carries an eight-year contract with it. Council members recommended that Powers should proceed with trying to rent the remaining space and should seek Economic Director Nathan Mick’s advice.

Garrard County Relay for Life is scheduled for June 29 this year. The event that raises money for cancer research will be held on the town square this year. Council members recommended that Chief Kidd prepare a form for organizations wishing to host events on the square to avoid any cross over in scheduling.

A second reading of the synthetic drug ordinance was passed unanimously.

Repairing of pot holes will begin as soon as black top is available, around mid-April.

Councilman Jessie Waggoner was not present.

The next regular monthly meeting will be April 2, 7 p.m. at city hall.

Little Butterfly Bowtique

The Little Butterfly Bowtique, 117 South Campbell is accepting items to take to storm damaged Salyersville and surrounding areas.

Sarah Ousley and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Vickers, owners of The Little Butterfly Bowtique are from Macgoffin County.

a consumer protection executive order over the weekend to implement Kentucky’s price-gouging laws statewide as of Friday, March 2, 2012.

The executive order empowers the Attorney General to investigate and prosecute, where appropriate, those who sell gasoline, generators, building supplies, chain saws, hotel rooms and other necessary goods and services at a price that is “grossly in excess” of the pre-declaration price.

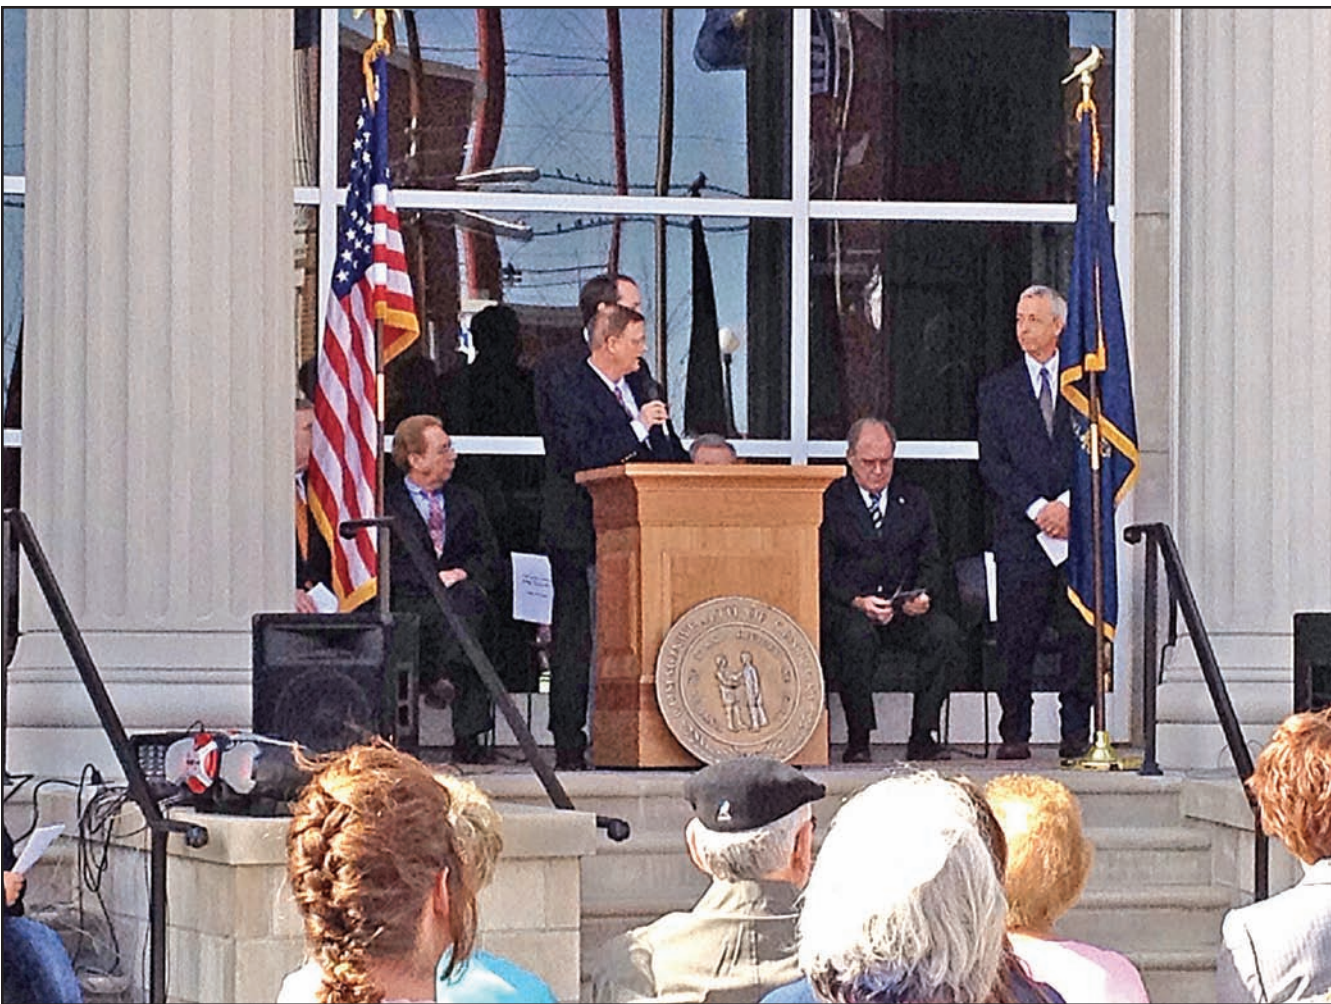

“My thoughts and prayers are with the many families and communities in Kentucky affected by Friday’s historic tornadoes,” General Conway said. “As the difficult clean-up begins, I want to ensure that those who are suffering are not victimized again by unscrupulous businesses. My office stands ready to investigate and prosecute anyone who seeks excessive profits during this time of emergency.”

The emergency order issued by Gov. Beshear will remain in effect for 30 days.

“As Kentucky continues to recover from the severe damage of last week’s storms, it’s important our citizens have the protection necessary to rebuild their lives and homes without fear of price gouging,” Gov. Beshear said. “The consumer protection executive order I signed on Friday gives them that added protection and sends a signal that we won’t tolerate any deceitful business activity during this critical time.”

Attorney General Conway also warns consumers that scam artists and fly-by-night contractors may also try to prey on their misfortune. Consumers who need storm repair or clean up services should follow these tips.

- Never pay in advance for repair work or materials. Scam artists often take advance payments from consumers and never return to complete the work. If an advance is needed to purchase materials, offer to purchase the materials yourself;
- Use local, reputable contractors for repairs, if possible. If local contractors bring in out-of-town workers, ask who will be responsible for their work if it is not satisfactory.
- Ask if the contractor is licensed, bonded (if required by the city or county), and insured.
- Check unknown companies out with the Better Business Bureau (Louisville/Western KY 1-800-388-2222; Lexington/Eastern KY 1-800-866-6668; Cincinnati BBB for residents in Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties 1-800-471-3015) or call the Consumer Protection Division 502-696-5466 to see if information is available about the company.
- Demand a written contract. If possible, get estimates from several contractors.
- Be suspicious of unfamiliar, out-of-state vehicles and those who offer repair work at unreasonably low prices. Contact local law enforcement about your suspicions.

Rep. Lonnie Napier (left), District Judge William Oliver standing in front of Judge Executive John Wilson and Circuit Judge Hunter Daugherty were among the several state and local officials speaking at the Judicial Center dedication Thursday.

$11.9 Million Judicial Center Dedication

(From Front)

Justice Center will provide an efficient facility where citizens can carry out court business and seek justice,” Minton added. “I appreciate the county leaders and state legislators who joined the Judicial Branch in making this project a reality.”

The facility is built directly behind the current courthouse in a design that showcases the current facility which has served Lancaster and Garrard County for the past 140 years.

The justice center consists of approximately 40,473 square feet and includes space for the circuit court, district court, the office of the Circuit Court Clerk and ancillary services.

The dedication began with a welcome from Judge Executive John Wilson, invocation by Reverend Earl Thornton and the pledge of allegiance lead by Margaret and Katherine Simpson. The National Anthem was performed by the Paint Lick Elementary School Choir.

Special thanks and recognitions were acknowledged by Donna Powell before the crowd heard more remarks about the building from Representative Lonnie Napier, State Senator Tom Buford, Chief District Judge Bill Oliver and Supreme Court of Kentucky Justice Daniel J. Ventors.

“One of the most outstanding things I see about this building is the decision to include our history in the way that this board decided to do so,” Napier said, speaking of the four statues erected in in the memory of the four governors of Kentucky who are associated with Garrard County. “It is important we think about our history as we look forward with this beautiful new justice center.”

The center’s six massive columns mimic those of the existing courthouse, and its exterior brick matches that of the old jailhouse across the street.

In 1984 the Garrard County Courthouse was named to the national registry of historic places.

The new facility is designed to greatly enhance the delivery of court services. It is equipped with the latest computer, video and networking technologies. The judicial center also provides the highest level of security through a single-point entry with magnetometers and security personnel. In addition, prisoners will be segregated from the public by separate entrances and corridors.

Some of the newly hired security staff said that most people loved the new surrounding and that they hadn’t really heard anyone complain about the metal detectors at the entrance to the new building but that it was something they could tell some folks would have to get used to.

The Project Development Board began its planning work in 2007, after the legislature green-lighted it during a building spree spearheaded by former Chief Justice John Lambert of neighboring Rockcastle County. Ground was broken in October of 2009.

The Administrative Office of the Courts is paying for the project and the county will retain ownership after it is paid off in 20 years. Wilson explained that the state will use the money it usually pays to the county to rent space for its court operations to make payments on the judicial center instead. When the facility is turned over to the county in 2031, the state will again pay rent to the county.

Taylor Machinery In Garrard County Creating 10 New Jobs

Taylor Machinery, owned and operated by Bill Taylor at 1480 Fisher Ford Road in northern Garrard County, has been approved for $300,000 in tax incentives from the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development based on an investment of $775,000 and creating 10 new jobs, Garrard County Economic Development Director Nathan Mick announced on Monday .

“We are proud to have Taylor Machinery growing in Garrard County and creating 10 new jobs locally,” Mick said. “Bill Taylor is a unique entrepreneur and inventor creating products in our community that will be sold and used all over the world. Part of economic development is helping existing businesses grow jobs and new investments. This local expansion is another economic boost in the right direction for Garrard County.”

Taylor Machinery currently employees three people and will hire 10 certified MIG welders as part of their expansion.

Additionally, two new 10,000 sq.ft. buildings will be constructed at Taylor Machinery to handle new product lines invented and patented by Bill Taylor.

One product is an aluminum-can baler and densifier that can be manufactured as a stationary unit or completely portable model. Using these balers, cans are crushed, densified and processed between 600 to 6,000 pounds per hour.

The other product to be manufactured in Garrard County is a semi-trailer for safely transporting crushed cars. The trailer includes a steel mesh encasing to control and prevent flying debris along with a hydraulic lift to open the trailer from the side for easy forklift load and unload of the crushed cars.

“I would like to thank my business consultant Pam Hoots, Garrard County Economic Development Director Nathan Mick, Garrard County Judge/Executive John Wilson, State Representative Lonnie Napier, State Senator Tom Buford and the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development for their support and work to secure the Kentucky tax incentives

so I can expand my business,” Taylor Machinery CEO Bill Taylor said “This expansion helps to open the global market for our products manufactured here in Garrard County.”

Growing up in the scrap metal business, Bill Taylor watched his father build machines. It was a natural progression for him to follow suit. Many prospective clients find it interesting when they make inquiry calls to discuss equipment. They soon discover that Taylor isn’t only a manufacturer but a scrap-metal dealer and has been in the scrap industry for years.

The necessity for better equipment for his own scrap yards led him to start designing and manufacturing equipment better suited for his purposes. His goal was to manufacture equipment that was durable, simple to operate and maintain as well as economically priced. Taylor Machinery Corp now offers a range of equipment designed specifically for the scrap industry.

Inspirations Looks To Share Local Crafts With The Public Year Round

tcx@garrardcentralrecord.com

As South Campbell Street grows and attracts more small business to the Lancaster landscape, the latest addition, opening on March 1, is one that is sure to draw the attention of local artists and crafters from around the area.

Inspirations, which is owned and operated by Jeri Vaiaage, her daughter Jessica Brown Fields and her husband, deals in all things handmade and offers quite a selection in that department. From hand crafted teddy bears made from Alpaca fur to mosquito houses (small bird houses), everything is featured at the Campbell Street location.

“We have a little company that we started doing all natural bath and body products and we wanted to create a business around that idea,” Vaiaage said. “Everything in this store is homemade or hand-crafted. We also do photography and have some painters bringing their stuff in. It is all kind of fitting together.”

Inspirations charges a commission to artists and crafters selling their items in the shop, which is trying to stay as local as they can.

“We started with all natural products and wanted it to also include wood turning and painting and other kinds of art,” Vaiaage, who is originally from Indiana and lives in Danville, said. “We saw this building on Craig’s List and I talked to James Bushnell. The places in Danville were just interested in how much they could get a month and the whole run around but when I talked to James, he was so excited excited about growing this street ad bringing business to Lancaster. I said to myself that I think I like them.”

Vaiaage and Fields love the old store and were excited to see people willing to help in getting the business up and going.

“It is nice to see that they are trying to build Lancaster back up,” Vaiaage said, “and I hope to be a part of it.”

Inspirations has plans to expands the upstairs area to include galleries for local artists and using an extra room for craft classes.

“We are getting it all together and hopefully next month will begin to offer some galleries and classes to the public,” she added.

Inspirations is opened from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. They are closed on Sunday.

“You will never see anything mass produced in here,” Vaiaage proudly stated.

UK MEN - The Cats' win at Florida gave UK an unbeaten SEC regular season and I don't see anyone beating them in the SEC Tournament. The Cats should go into the NCAA Tournament as the number one overall seed with Syracuse getting the number two overall seed. That would set up a rematch of the 1996 national championship game if the seeds hold up. Odds are they won't but if they do the Orange just don't put fear in my heart. I hope I don't end up regretting that statement.

UK WOMEN - The Lady Kats won their first regular season SEC title in 30 years but they are limping into the post season. UK lost in the second round of the SEC tourney to LSU, their second loss to the Lady Tigers. UK has gone 4-4 in its last eight games and dropped to # 12 in the country. Where it once looked like the Lady Kats would get a two or three seed in the NCAA Tournament it is now looking more like a four or five. They can still make a good run in the tournament if they get their act together. They are better when they are playing teams that haven't seen that pressure defense the Kats can play.

LINCOLN COUNTY GIRLS - Congratulations to the Lady Pats on their 12th Region championship. Lincoln was the pre-season favorite and lived up to the hype. That is not always an easy thing to do. Lincoln opens tournament play tonight (Thursday) against Clay County the 13th Region champion.

RALPH SALLEE - The late Garrard County resident has been selected to the Kentucky Assoc. of Basketball Coaches Girls' Court of Honor. Sallee coached at Burgin, Lexington Christian and East Jessamine.

Kentucky Afield Outdoors: March Fishing Madness White Bass Run Just Around The Corner

Looking back at old photos from the 1950s and 1960s in Happy Hunting Ground magazine, the precursor of Kentucky Afield magazine, you see anglers wading in the Dix River in spring with strings of fat white bass tied to their belts. The spring white bass runs in the headwaters of Lake Herrington and up into the Dix River drew anglers from all over central Kentucky and beyond when the dogwoods bloomed in late March and April.

The drought years of the late 1980s and early 1990s impacted the strong spring flow that white bass need to spawn. White bass populations all over the South declined, precipitously in some waters.

Herrington Lake was one of those waters where white bass populations fell dramatically. By the late 1990s and the early 2000s, the famous white bass runs dwindled to a shell of their former greatness. The population bottomed out, but once regular spring tides returned, so did the white bass runs.

"There are now fantastic white bass at Herrington," said Kathryn Emme, assistant central district fisheries biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "We see many fish from 14 to 16 inches. The Herrington Lake white bass are bigger and better than most of our lakes in our region, except Taylorsville."

Anglers targeting white bass in Herrington may launch at Bryant's Camp Boat Ramp and continue upstream until the lake returns to the rocky pool and riffle of the Dix River. They may encounter white bass jumping anywhere in this stretch.

White bass showed up in Taylorsville Lake in the early 1990s. They didn't appear in the early years of the lake, but now they make one of the strongest spring runs in Kentucky.

"We saw some dandy white bass in Taylorsville, up to 16 inches long and healthy," Emme said. "The run up the Salt River should be strong this spring if everything cooperates."

Boating anglers after Taylorsville Lake white bass may launch at the Van Buren Boat Ramp and continue upstream. Bank anglers may use the Palmer Road access off Pleasant Grove Ridge Road via KY 248. They may also access the river at the KY 248 Bridge. Both of these access points lie inside the Taylorsville Lake Wildlife Management Area.

The spring white bass run into the headwaters of Nolin River Lake is arguably the best in Kentucky. The lake holds high numbers of 12- to 16-inch fish. The section from the Broad Ford boat ramp all the way upstream to KY 224 Bridge at Millerstown is highly productive. Anglers may bank access the Nolin River Lake headwater at the Bacon Creek Boat Ramp and also at the Broad Ford Bridge on KY 1214.

Boaters venturing upstream of the Bacon Creek Boat Ramp must tread carefully as Nolin River Lake quickly becomes the Nolin River, full of rocks, riffles and shallow shoals.

Other waters in Kentucky offer productive spring white bass fishing. A stocking program begun in 2006 placed tens of thousands of white bass into the Kentucky River. They congregate in spring below locks and dams on the river with some fish up to 12 inches long. The fisheries division of Kentucky Fish and Wildlife recently received reports of white bass showing up below locks and dams in the lower sections of Green River.

The tailwaters of Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley also have good spring white bass fishing. The upper end of Cave Run Lake will have excellent white bass fishing this spring with many fish 12 to 14 inches long with some fish longer than 16 inches. Fisheries biologists witnessed more white bass in Cave Run Lake this past fall than in the past 15 years. Be careful boating in the upper ends of this lake as it contains signifi-

Lady Lions Are Suddenly Young

By Danny Elam

delam@garrardcentralrecord.com

When Garrard County walked off the field last Spring after a 12th Region Tournament loss to Southwestern the future was looking bright for the Lady Lions and Coach Jeff Meadors as only one starter graduated from that Lady Lion team that finished the season at 22-8.

That was then, this is now. First catcher Mary Fyfe transferred to Boyle County and then center fielder Sydney was lost for the season with and ACL injury that required surgery. To make matters worse shortstop Devin Conley and third baseman Mallori McMaine chose not to play in 2012 as did reserves Braxton Sowder and Samantha Price leaving Meadors with a lot of holes to fill.

Only five players return from last season's roster and there are no seniors. One of those returnees is junior Hannah Miniard, probably the best pitcher in the 12th Region. Miniard will keep Garrard in most games if the Lady Lions can scratch across a few runs.

"We may have to do what a lot of my fans don't like and play small ball," Meadors said. "You have to move runners along and try to score some runs."

Another returning starter is junior Ramie Goldey who has caught a lot of innings but Meadors would rather play her in the outfield or maybe even at shortstop to strengthen the Garrard defense.

Sophomore Logan Ellis started at first base a year ago but can play anywhere on the field.

Soph Madison DeBord started at second in 2011 and brings a good glove to the lineup.

The fifth returning player is junior Stephanie Wall who will back up Miniard in the circle. Wall has been working hard in the pre-season and will play somewhere.

After those five Garrard gets really young. One of the newcomers is 8th grader Randa Morris who could start the season behind the plate allowing Goldey to play elsewhere.

Another 8th grader who will make an impact is Hayley Hamilton who Meadors says is one of the most raw, talented players he has seen.

Freshmen Hannah Day and Hannah Grimes will also fit in the mix. Day is a big, strong girl who hits the ball well and Grimes is a really good defensive player.

Freshman Rachyl Lyons is a smart all-around player and another freshman Breonna Hocker has speed and can cover a lot of ground in the outfield.

Hunter Clem and Olivia Morton are still two more freshmen who are battling for playing time.

Meadors always schedules tough and this year is no different with the Lady Lions playing in several tough tournaments including a Spring Break trip to Clarksville, TN so the Lady Lions could take their lumps early on.

"I hope the schedule doesn't affect us mentally. We are so young," Meadors said. "It will be good for us if we can get through it."

Garrard opens the season March 22 at home hosting Mercer County.

cant amounts of submerged timber.

With water temperatures pushing up through the 50 degree mark, the spring white bass runs are right at the doorstep. "With the warm winter we've had, the runs are probably going to be early this year," explained Emme. "They could start soon."

When white bass make their spring spawning runs and show up in numbers, the fishing is practically non-stop. They churn the water surface from bank to bank when they get into the "jumps" and gorge on baitfish. Any lure cast into this frothy water gets immediately crushed, hence the extreme popularity of white bass fishing in spring.

White bass hit small topwaters such as shad-colored propeller baits, chuggers and popping baits. They also strike small silver casting spoons, chrome lipless crankbaits and white or chartreuse inline spinners.

The most reliable and versatile lure is an old standby: a white 3-inch curly-tailed grub rigged on a 1/4-ounce leadhead. A little heavier leadhead gives an angler extra casting distance.

When you encounter a school of marauding white bass, work the grub near the surface first. If no fish strike, let the lure sink a few feet before retrieving.

Young Local Fencers Compete

Three fencers from Garrard County travelled to Columbus, Ohio for the ninth annual Arnold Fencing Classic.

Sawyer Cornett, EvaLynn and Wyatt Will spent the weekend competing and cheering on their team mates.

This was EvaLynn Will's very first tournament. Wyatt and EvaLynn started fencing about six months ago at the Bluegrass Fencers' Club in Lexington. This was the third time for Cornett to compete in the Arnold Classic. Sawyer has been fencing for almost four years at the Bluegrass Fencers' Club under Amgad Khazbak. Coach Khazbak is also one of the coaches for the 2012 Olympic fencing team.

During the tournament Cornett and EvaLynn Will were filmed for a documentary on fencing. Sawyer was filmed for two days, and EvaLynn was filmed on Saturday.

Arnold Schwarzenegger made an appearance on Friday and came in to speak with the fencers. Cornett got to shake hands with Arnold and then the movie star wished him luck with the rest of his fencing.

L-R: EvaLynn Will, Sawyer Cornett, Wyatt Will

Cornett will compete in the North American Cup on

Stringtown News Mildred McCollum	Escaped The Storms
---	---------------------------

Hi to family, friends and neighbors.

I hope you didn't get hurt in the awful storm we had last Wednesday the 29th. We got a lot of hard rain, some wind and thunder and lightning but praise the Lord the real bad passed us by. Some places were torn up real bad. It makes me sorry for everyone that wasn't blessed as much as we were. I know it would be bad to lose your home and nowhere to go. We are not thankful enough when we are so blessed.

Our visitors Saturday were Irene Nunn and little Brayden May. He is Irene's grandson. Also Sherry Bryant and her granddaughter McKayla Horn, Kyle Abney and his girlfriend.

Edward & Genevie Lamb and Johnny & Tara Bryant and Connor visited us on Sunday.

Donald Baker is sick. Pray for him. I want to thank him and Linda for the most pretty puppy they gave to my daughter Irene. It is so little, about like a little ball of cotton. Linda, Irene loves it so much and Jessie does too. I never seen one so pretty I don't think.

Edward I sent your birthday in last week and forgot to put your name. Oh well, when you get 84 you forget.

Billy Bryant visited us on Wednesday.

Hi to my friends Venessa Cheek and Louise Greiner

Cassandra Cheek called Joyce and me on Wednesday from Spain. She is over there from her school spending some time. She is planning on returning the last of April. We were sure glad to hear her sweet voice so far from home and we miss her at church.

Pray for our service boys and girls.

God bless one and all.

Nina Ridge/Hackley Freda Johnson	Lucky On Nina Ridge
---	----------------------------

Hello Readers

It has been a strange time with the weather. God must be awful angry with us. That's the first time I ever saw hail that big and it sounded like a freight train going over rocks. I just knew the roof of the store would be laying in the road when I came out of the basement, but it wasn't. The good Lord spared us that but a lot of vehicles got beat up and a few windows broken or windshields. We are so fortunate and blessed. No one got killed and no one lost their home. West Liberty wasn't so lucky and other places where a whole family got killed. We can count our blessings.

Pray for the sick. I know a lot of people that have cancer. That's a dirty word and a very dirty disease. I have a brother and brother-in-law who have it. I pray for them all the time.

Happy birthday to Phillip Johnson on the 29th and anyone else that has a birthday in March.

Pray for our leaders and nation.

God bless all.

Town & Country Mary G. Dunn	The Time Changes This Weekend
--	--------------------------------------

Our prayers go out to all those around that are suffering from the terrible storms we had in our state and other places. Some are hospitalized. We hope everyone is praying also. I always try to send a prayer for everyone I know or hear of in trouble

I prayed for the young man's family that passed. I did not know him but Janet knew him well and said he was a very friendly young man. So much tragedy.

Remember what the Bible tells us to do. Pray in season and seasons to come. That means we should pray all the time.

The Anderson children had a beautiful 50th anniversary for their parents. Tables decorated very nice and plenty of food of all kind and desserts of all kind. I do not know how they did it all even the young twins helped. I see the twins at the nursing home all the time helping the seniors play games.

West Liberty was flattened by the storm. I heard one man mention that God was really with them as they survived the storm. I heard no one else to mention God. God is so great that he can stop anything he wants to and start anything he wants to. Some

Mt. Hebron News Doris Baker	Won't Be Long Until Mowing

Hello everyone.

The past week brought total destruction to a lot of people. When we see on TV all of the states who have lost their homes and their lives we who escaped our hearts go out to every one of them. All of them are innocent people who couldn't imagine how it was going to be. Now they have snow and cold weather, We cannot believe any place that was hit could be so bad to so many.

I'm doing better. I have got to go back to church. My therapist is still coming but I am thankful for my progress.

All of my family escaped the tornado. We did have some snow and rain on Sunday but nothing compared to the states who were seem to forget that.

Snow was here yesterday but as it does in Kentucky sometime it does not last.

The time will change this weekend.

Do you know that some doctors think we should never use salt?

Parents continue to love your kids. They act ugly sometime but continue to love them. They are yours. Don't forget to discipline them.

Don't forget the time.

hit. Words cannot explain just how we feel for them who have lost loved ones and their homes.

It won't be long until we will be mowing the yards. Some of my flowers are blooming and fast time will be upon us this week. Where has the year gone so fast and ended with such pain with sorrow and death for so many states? Count your blessings and remember all the ones who need your prayers.

The snow has finally come when it's Spring. It caused an additional problem for the tornado people. Even Lexington had five inches.

This month has caused a lot of problems. Makes one wonder what Summer will bring.

Bye all.

Paint Lick News Katie Rollins	Damage- Not As Bad As In Other Places
--	--

Hello Readers.

First off, I am sorry for no column last week, I have been under the weather like the most of you who have visited our Doc to try and feel some better. "It takes time", he says and he's right.

I think it is safe to say, the storms are over..at least, as of this writing. Just as everyday, when I praise HIM, I know the sun will be shining, once again, here in Paint Lick and I am grateful to the Lord for his sparing of our small town. While the outside of our house did receive damage, the homes and cars of all the people up and down The Old Railroad look as if they were hit by a machine gun. The vinyl siding, slashed, the many windows, cracked or broken and even the paint was lifted from exterior walls, but folks, it all was minor damage compared to what we have seen come across the television on our local news. I could just cry for the many who have lost their family and also their homes. The storms were told over and over again as we all waited and watched last Friday evening (Mar. 02, 2012) when the many tornadoes and storms came through parts of Indiana and through Kentucky. The papers were very descriptive with photos taken, sometimes at the very minute of threatening weather. I have given many prayers and my thoughts are always with each and everyone of the victims who suffered any type of tragedy. I look outside my window as I write this, I marvel in HIS greatness and... just pray.

This coming Friday, March 9, my granddaughter will be fifteen...my, where has the time gone? Amanda Brooke Rollins is my only grand daughter and I love her more than I can ever make her believe. It is also the birthday of our neighbor Billy Hale and Doug's Uncle Donald Ray (Buddy) of Cumberland Lake. Friday is also a good evening to enjoy a great fish supper at Tussey's General Store over in Kirksville. Doug and Susie Tussey welcome all who like the taste of their beer-battered fish, homemade slaw, hand cut fries, and baked beans with hush puppies and dessert all for a reasonable price.

Give them a call at 859-328-4000 for some fast service with a warm atmosphere inside the old "mom and pop grocery" located in Round Hill, Ky

Happy birthday to a very special lady, my friend Janet Perry. Janet lives on Gillespie Pk. and I hope to help her celebrate her big day on Monday. Also to Mr. Jamie Vanoy of Lancaster on Monday, have a great day.

To my brother, Bobby and his wife Francine, a wonderfully, happy anniversary to you both, Tuesday, Mar.13

To my niece, Peggy Sue Turner, I pray that you will have good day on Thurs, Mar.15. I love you.

May God Bless

An Encouraging Word

A Practical Formula For Living

By Howard
Coop

Conversations are a normal part of everyday life; they are the basic means of communication between individuals. Constantly, everyone participates in them. They can be interesting, informative, ordinary, and on occasion, boring; but they are necessary.

Recently, in an ordinary conversation with a group of friends when nothing of great importance was being discussed, I noted something that is quite common. One member of the group repeated the phrase "one another" over and over again, and the frequent use of that phrase caught my attention.

"One another" is a common phrase that is often used in everyday conversation. It indicates a reciprocal relationship or reciprocal action among the members of the group referred to by an antecedent. Thinking of the conversation in which I participated and the meaning of the phrase, I recalled another insightful experience that I had.

On one occasion, I was reading the New Testament when I came upon a statement that caught my attention: "Encourage one another and build one another up." At once, I realized that the passage contained, and was constructed around, that common phrase of everyday speech "one another."

With my interest piqued, I began to look for other passages in which that phrase was used. To my amazement, I found a number of passages that contained it, and I made some notes for future use. Here are four more short, but powerful, statements that I found during that quiet moment of reflection:

"Consider how to stir up one another to love and good works."

"Outdo one another in showing honor."

"Love one another with brotherly affection."

"Through love be servants of one another."

When I looked back at those notes, I was amazed at what I saw. From the local community to the international scene, trouble results from bad human relationships. There is trouble between persons, and there is trouble between nations. In those notes, I saw a simple, but practical, formula for living that, when practiced, will produce better relationships and, thereby, a better society.
